FAQ

- 1. I've seen a Hockey Alberta announcement that draw zones are being taken away and that there will be no borders. Is this correct?

The recent Information Bulletin 24-04 from Hockey Alberta provides important guidance for first-time hockey registrants and outlines some changes regarding player movement, especially for elite hockey levels like AAA and AA. Here's a summary of the key points:

- 1. First-time Registrants: Families registering their child for hockey for the first time can choose any Minor Hockey Association (MHA) that will accept their registration.*
- 2. Player Movement Process: There are specific procedures for players who applied to the player movement process in the previous season. The bulletin emphasizes that draw zones are still relevant for elite hockey divisions.*
- 3. Elite Hockey Options: For players looking to explore teams outside of their designated draw zones, tools like the Elite Player Movement Process and the Second Tryout Process are available.*
- 4. Application Requirements: Players outside current draw zone boundaries who wish to play in RAC must complete and submit the Elite Player Movement Application form before July 1 and receive approval before attending the Fall or Main Camps.*

Make sure to review the full bulletin for detailed procedures and deadlines.

- 2. Does this mean that (a) any player outside of RAC's draw zone can attend RAC's Spring Camp, or that (b) my player can attend a Spring Camp offered by another elite club?

Players are permitted to participate in Spring Identification (ID) Skates only within the association for which they meet the registration requirements, as outlined in the AAA/AA Hockey Model (draw zone players). This means that any player who needs to submit an Elite Player Movement Request to join a AAA/AA team is not eligible to take part in the Spring ID Skates for that association.

- 3. To make a AAA or AA team in RAC do I have to attend Spring Camp?

No. However, players must attend Spring Camp to be eligible to receive a Signing Offer to a AAA team.

- 4. Who will be evaluating the camps?

Evaluations during all camps will be completed by the AAA Head Coach and staff; if they are not available, a third-party evaluator will be brought in. On-ice skills skates may be run by the coaching staff, third-party evaluators or skills providers/coaches at the Club's discretion.

5. If I am placed into tryout Camp from Spring Camp and do not make the main camp, may I still apply for a AAA second try-out somewhere else?

Yes, if released from RAC, you may apply for a second try-out

6. Is my player still able to try out for Hockey Alberta programs, including the Prospects Cup, the Alberta Cup or the Alberta Challenge?

Yes. We have accounted for these regional camp dates in our schedule with these opportunities in mind
